"On to the Realm of Nothingness—on, still in dauntless flight, Along the splendora swiftly steer my sailing wings of light."

The Nats are such optimists now that they call one game in a row a winning streak.

Al Smith nimbly sidesteps the dictatorship role, and Tammany is now in a position to appreciate how those farm relief Republican Senators feel about Hoover.

Consider the mental agonies endured by Jim Watson when he saved his life he can't find out whether he's got the courage of the President's convictions or not.

Speaking of convictions, if a New York jury won't bring in any under the Volstead Act what chance has the poor old Mother Jones law got?

It is encouraging to read Jack Garner's charge that secret information on the new tariff has been leaking from the Ways and Means Committee to the Special Interests—in the old days the Ways and Means Committee obtained their information on the tariff in leaks from the Special Interests.

We can well imagine that two royal elephants on a wild rampage terrified the populace in Bangkok, when one of 'em was able to start a panic in Dixie last November.

Chairman Hawley's idea of pitiless publicity is secret schedules of rates privately agreed upon, but if the Democrats of the House are so supine as to stand for a law to be passed by one Congress being cooped up by the preceding Congress, naturally when a committee room door is slammed in their faces they haven't spunk enough to batter it down and demand their rights and privileges as Members.

The truth of the matter is that the whole system of government of the founders is beginning to crack, what with a Speaker being selected by a majority caucus of an expiring Congress, and hearings on a tariff bill being conducted in a recess of Congress by gentlemen who aren't even Members of Congress, but merely Members-elect. No wonder it is seriously proposed that the House of Representatives turn the whole tariff matter over to the President and go in for golf.

Baseball and moving pictures and the Demon Rum will be the theme of some of our Sunday sermons tomorrow. Anything about religion going on now and then?

Johnny Raskob plans to turn the Democratic deficit into a melon.

President Hoover serves warning on the farmers, so to speak, that like the original patriots, if they don't hang together they'll very likely hang separately.

A Senator's idea of a legal Secretary of the Treasury is an inmate of the poor farm who went through bankruptcy for the first time in 1887, and was never able to get back on his feet.

Al Smith's refusal to participate in the selection of a new boss of Tammany Hall indicates that Mayor Jimmy Walker is now occupying a five-cent seat in the front row, and not hanging onto a strap.

Owners of the Leviathan are to begin a series of experiments to determine how much liquor to carry for the westbound trip, multiplying the number of Elks by the number of Sunday School superintendents, and dividing by the number of first cabin stewards.

Mr. Hoover's published list of patronage insiders doesn't disclose, however, just whose advice it was he took.

Naturally, the winner of the Boston marathon is a youth named Miles, and he ought to be just 26 and a fraction.

Herr Schacht trips over the Versailles dotted line, and is unanimously sustained by the German press and Senator Borah.

But will Senator Coal Blazes' investigation reveal the system of getting an invitation to a Canal Zone trip and the freedom of the Port and Sherry?

Geneva reads the patriotic proceedings of the D. A. R., and moves for an immediate limitation of armaments.

But isn't the Shenandoah Valley untrue to its celebrated crop by selecting a peach to be queen of the festival?

"Give me something, I don't care what, To take away this pain I've got."

The trouble about Dr. Hoover's diagnosis is that the farmers are united in their bellyaches, and don't care what they take.

FRAUD KEY MAN IN BANKRUPTCY QUIZ IS SUICIDE

David Steinhardt, Hunted Since January, Kills Self in Hotel.

JUDGE WINSLOW QUIT BECAUSE OF SCANDAL

Three Letters May Reveal Details of Ring That Swindled Many.

VICTIM TAKES POISON AS HIS WIFE LOOKS ON

Disappearance 3 Months Ago Preceded Congressional Inquiry on Affairs.

New York, April 19 (U.P.)—A three-month nation-wide search for David Steinhardt, central figure in a huge Ponzi-like investment scheme and bankruptcy ring which netted thousands of dollars, came to a grim end today.

Steinhardt, once a highly regarded New York lawyer and candidate for Congress, surrendered to a Government officer in a hotel room in Philadelphia this morning—but he did not allow himself to be taken alive. He excused himself for a moment, walked into an adjoining room and swallowed a violent poison.

Five minutes later he was dead. Steinhardt, until he became a fugitive from justice last January 8, had been a prominent referee and receiver in bankruptcy. By appointment of Federal courts he had handled 124 such cases for the Government before it was learned that some $500,000 had been embezzled from the estates entrusted to him.

Many Women Defrauded. Steinhardt disappeared, and his disappearance was followed by revelations of a get-rich-quick scheme by which the attorney had allegedly defrauded hundreds of investors, mostly women, of more fortunes. Government investigators said the financial bubble might reach million-dollar proportions.

While Justice Department agents conducted a search for him that extended across the entire United States and led into Canada, other scandals were brewing. Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow, who had appointed Steinhardt to 38 of his 124 receiverships, was impeached in Congress by Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York. He was made the co-accused with Marcus Helfand, another lawyer, of a grand jury investigation here and of a special inquiry by a subcommittee of the House Judiciary committee in Washington. As the inquiry was getting under way, Judge Winslow resigned.

Jury Failed to Indict. The grand jury here did not indict him, but it reproved him for "indiscretions" of judicial conduct.

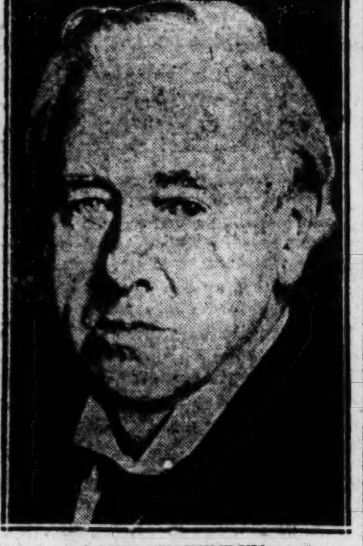

Max Fisher, assistant clerk of the United States District Court, who was Steinhardt's cousin, came under scrutiny of the investigators. Two days after Steinhardt's disappearance he learned that they had connected him with the scandal, and slashed his throat. He recovered later and made a valuable witness in the investigation. Developments came rapidly. Two lawyer associates of Steinhardt went to prison, another was disbarred and two more were criticized from the bench.

Wife Made Him Surrender. Meanwhile, rumors said Steinhardt was dodging back and forth across the international boundary line. United States Attorney Charles Tuttle received the promise of Mrs. Steinhardt that she would try to persuade him to give up to the authorities.

It was she who arranged the surrender in Philadelphia today. She was

ASKS ARMS CUT

LORD CUSHENDUN.

NEW TRIPARTITE NAVY CONFERENCE HINTED

Lord Cushendun, of Britain, Urges Geneva Session to Defer Sea Policy.

ASKS ACTS, NOT ORATORY

Geneva, April 19 (U.P.)—The possibility of a fresh naval arms conference between the United States, Great Britain and France arose today when Lord Cushendun, chief British delegate, asked the League of Nations disarmament commission to defer consideration of naval arms limitation.

The commission is trying to prepare the way for a general disarmament conference, embracing land, air and sea forces.

Lord Cushendun, in his speech before the commission, expressed confidence that agreement could be reached in the league body on land and air armaments, and added:

"Naval difficulties have been one of the principal obstacles, but I wish to point out that, after all, great progress was made toward naval reduction at the Washington conference. I insist that while waiting for further agreement on naval limitation we get down to business on land and air armaments."

Delegates at once began discussing the possibility of a three-power naval conference, with America, Britain and France represented, after the British general elections to be held late in May. It was pointed out that if such a conference were held and was successful, the league disarmament commission could hold a session late in September after the league assembly's annual meeting—and incorporate a naval section into a general tentative agreement. This would permit a definite disarmament conference early next year.

Hugh Gibson, American observer, was unable to attend today's meeting. He is confined to bed with a cold.

Lord Cushendun's speech came after the league commission had sidetracked a Russian proposal for immediate reduction in all armaments of 50 per cent. It was suggested to Russia that she make the proposal again at a full disarmament conference. It has no hope of success.

England is willing to accept any military disarmament agreement unanimously reached by the military powers, Lord Cushendun said.

"I also am confident England can accept any basis for aerial disarmament to which other nations represented here can agree," he added. "For the first time since the commission convened we are taking up the serious business. What we have needed to date is a convention for reduction of armaments."

"I wish to reaffirm that the British government wishes a disarmament conference at the earliest date and as a fiasco would greatly please the Soviet delegates—we wish to avoid that by having the commission hasten its preparation, as England's problem is naval rather than military."

HOOVER URGES FARM LEADERS TO END STRIFE

Warns Present Division of Organizations Is Peril to Relief Steps.

FORMAL STATEMENT IS MADE ON SUBJECT

G. O. P. Plan of Principles Forced Concessions From All Sides.

FARMERS ARE UNITED, GRANGE HEAD INSISTS

President Carefully Avoids Criticism of Senators' Efforts to Agree.

By CARLISLE BARGERSON.

President Hoover yesterday sought to halt the developing farm fight in the Senate by warning the farmers that unless they get together their enemies may be able to prevent any farm relief.

It was a carefully worded warning that studiously avoided any criticism of the senators themselves. Rather, it accepted the present situation in the Senate as due to a division of the farmers' organizations and the farmers. The senators' agitation for the farm debtors plan the President professed to believe to be due to the demands of their constituents, and not pure senatorial politics.

This treatment of the situation brought the quick observation by Louis J. Taber, head of the National Grange, however, that the "farmers are now more together than they ever were before."

The President's statement, made in answer to press inquiries as to his views on farm relief in view of the Senate fight, follows:

"I regret to see that some farm organizations are again divided on measures of agricultural relief. One primary difficulty in the whole of this last eight years has been the conflict in point of view in the ranks of the agricultural organizations and the farmers themselves."

"A definite plan of principles for farm relief was adopted by the Republican convention at Kansas City. It was the plan of the party; it was not then or now the plan of any individual or group; it was necessarily the result of compromise; it represented an effort to get together and secure fundamental beginnings and necessitated the yielding of views by all of us: it was supported by all elements of the party in the campaign and upon it we have a clear mandate."

"Without entering into the merits or demerits of any other suggestion at the present time I can deplore that divisions in the ranks of the farmers themselves encourage those who oppose all farm relief and can at best only bring great delays and danger of entire failure. If after eight years of agitation and debate on a matter so vital to a large part of our people we are to succeed in putting the question out of politics and on the way to solution under economic guidance we have need of unity in the ranks of the farmers themselves and the different groups which reflect their views in Congress. No great step in public action can ever succeed without some compromise of view and some sacrifice of opinion."

Not Unified on Bill. When Mr. Taber said that the farmers were more united now than ever before he probably did not mean that they were united in favor of any particular bill. The National Grange has sponsored the debtors plan of farm relief for a long time. The Farm Bureau sponsored the greatly controverted equalization fee.

They are together now in that the November campaign took the fight out of them and at the outset of the hearings by the House and Senate agriculture committee several weeks ago they made known that they were determined.

OFFICIALS SEE GREAT AIRPORT AT BALTIMORE

District Men Learn How Serious Difficulties Were Overcome.

966 ACRES IN TRACT, LARGELY RECLAIMED

Washington Seen Faced by Easy Problem in Comparison.

MORE THAN $800,000 SPENT UPON PROJECT

Field Has Six 500-Foot-Wide and 3,000-Foot-Long Runways for Planes.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Baltimore, April 19.—In spite of much greater difficulties and expenses than those faced by the National Capital, Baltimore is going ahead with actual construction of the greatest airport in America, delegates from the aviation committee of the Washington Board of Trade learned here today.

Escorted by Charles W. Groob, city engineer of Baltimore, the delegates and several District and Government engineers pored over plans and visited the site of Baltimore's contribution to aerial progress. They learned, when all was said and done, that Washington has an easy task compared to that which is being put through by the determination and spirit of its sister city.

The Baltimore Airport, which will cover 966 acres when it is completed, will be more than 75 per cent reclaimed land. A narrow strip along the shore of the Patuxent River, 7 miles from the city, has been bought at an average cost of $4,000 per acre. The balance must be filled in and contained behind a concrete retaining wall over a depth of 30 feet.

Channel Dredgings Used.

The average cost of the entire 966 acres, Groob said, will be about $1,000 per acre, because earth dredged from the river by the Government in channel operations, will be used to extend the area away from the shore. He estimated the ultimate cost of the completed airport, with runways and buildings, at $10,000 per acre. This figure, however, must depend upon changes in the requirements of aviation between now and the time the port is completed. The time required for this work he estimated at not less than three years.

In spite of these difficulties and a decided increase in land values when it became known that the city wanted the property for development purposes, Baltimore has already voted a bond issue of $2,000,000 for completion of the first half of the airport. Toward the purchase of this work, $1,700,000 has already been allocated for the purchase of land and the construction of the retaining wall. More than $800,000 has already been spent for the land.

Looking toward completion of the gigantic project, the Maryland Legislature at its last session voted for a bond issue of another $2,000,000 for the extension of the airport to its final extent. This bond issue will be voted upon by the people of the county in the near future.

Revenue From Industries.

When completed, the airport will be a six-way field, with runways 500 feet wide and extending, in one direction, more than 3,000 feet. It has not been decided whether these runways will be constructed of concrete or some other material.

A 30-foot channel will parallel the length of the airport for the use of vessels and seaplanes. A large part of the port area will be leased to industries, the revenues from which, according to Groob, will materially reduce the cost of the project.

Air passengers who land at the airport will have three means of covering the 7 miles to the heart of the city. One will be by a trolley line which will touch the inner edge of the field. The

HOPE FOR REPARATIONS REVISION FADES HERE; NEXT STEP GERMANY'S

Dr. Julius Klein Gets Commerce Position

Hoover Names Confidante of Cabinet Post to Be Assistant Secretary.

(Associated Press.)

Appointment of Dr. Julius Klein, now director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, to be Assistant Secretary of Commerce, was announced yesterday by President Hoover.

The action followed almost immediately upon the return of Dr. Klein from a tour of Europe, where he inspected some of the more important American trade promotion offices. He succeeds Walter F. Brown, now Postmaster General, who left the Commerce Department post to enter the Cabinet.

Dr. Klein, a native of California, began service in the Commerce Department in 1917, but resigned later to take a chair at Harvard University. He was recalled into Government service by President Hoover on his becoming Secretary of Commerce in 1921.

Since that time, Dr. Klein has directed the principal Bureau of the Commerce Department engaged in foreign trade promotion. He was considered one of the most active and intimate associates of the President during his Cabinet tenure.

BORAH FINDS GERMAN STAND IS REASONABLE

Delegates, However, Assert Parley Is Dead Unless Paper Is Withdrawn.

(Associated Press.)

There was a distinct feeling of pessimism here last night over the prospects for the success of the present meeting of the Reparations Commission in Paris. The attitude of the American Government is one of complete sympathy with all efforts to reach a settlement of the reparations problem, and the threatened breakdown of the negotiations is viewed with some alarm.

While the United States Government is not officially represented, contending that its interest in reparations is confined to a small fraction of the total involved, the course of the negotiations has been closely followed by officials in view of the economic consequences likely to follow.

Offer Just, Says Borah.

Secretary Stimson yesterday received from the American Embassy in Paris an official report on the disagreement of the subcommittee of experts, the American diplomats reporting to him that this probably meant the break-up of the conference. Efforts to secure from him some expression of the American Government's view in such a conference broke up, were without avail.

Chairman Borah of the Senate foreign relations committee said he considered the offer of Germany "essentially just."

"I feel," he said, "that the offer of Germany is reasonable and fair. When the sum which Germany has paid in cash and kind and the losses she suffered in territory and otherwise are considered, I feel her offer was essentially just."

Hope Rests on Germany.

Paris, April 19 (A.P.)—The second Dawes committee ended today the tenth week of its efforts finally to settle the German reparations problem in the gloom of threatening failure and bereavement for the death of one of its members, Lord Revelstoke, of Great Britain.

All hope that something yet might be salvaged but of the work of the conference rested tonight upon talks which the Germans were reported to have had this afternoon with other experts concerning the possibility of reopening negotiations.

The American delegates to the committee were unable to say anything as to the future, other than that the plenary session Monday alone could show whether there was a chance to save the negotiations from failure.

For most persons connected with the committee and for those following its work, failure of the conference has been already established.

Plenary Session Adjourns.

It remains, however, for the plenary session to establish officially the fact that the committee can not proceed further with its efforts to reconcile the divergent theses of the German and the allied delegations.

Until the full committee meets at 11 o'clock Monday morning no further activities of the experts were expected tonight.

The plenary session called this morning adjourned at once out of respect for Lord Revelstoke who was found dead in his bed, apparently from the fatigue and strain of yesterday's crucial

DEMOCRATS TO OPEN HEADQUARTERS HERE

Raskob and Smith, With Party Leaders, Map Plans to Meet Deficit.

COMMITTEE TO BE NAMED

New York, April 19 (A.P.)—John J. Raskob, Democratic national chairman, after an extensive session tonight with former Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Senator Joseph T. Robinson and members of the party's advisory and executive committees, announced that he will appoint a subcommittee to study the various suggestions offered as to how to wipe out the party's deficit from the 1928 national campaign.

The debt is now about $1,300,000, Mr. Raskob said, sales of the former governor's campaign book and other contributions having brought in about $200,000.

Many suggestions from all sorts of sources on how to pay off the debt have been made, Mr. Raskob said, but he declined to discuss any of them in detail. "It would only lead to all kinds of confusion," he said.

Plans for a militant national organization, with special emphasis on the 1930 congressional election, also were discussed, Mr. Raskob said.

"It was generally agreed," he said, "that we ought to have active headquarters in Washington."

Soon after the close of the campaign last November Mr. Raskob advocated moving the national headquarters to Washington. He indicated tonight that this may soon be done.

He will appoint his subcommittee to consider plans for paying off the debt within the next ten days, he said. He added that he probably would serve as its chairman.

He discussed not only means of raising the debt incurred in the last campaign, he said, but also raising money with which the party may carry on in a strong and militant manner.

Those who attended the meeting tonight were Mr. Raskob's guests at dinner in his apartment at the Carlton Hotel, which is the apartment hotel division of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel. No reporters were admitted until after the guests had departed.

The guests, in addition to the presidential and vice presidential candidates, included many prominent party leaders.

BIG PARADE CLIMAX OF APPLE FESTIVAL

Thousands See Resplendent Queen Attended by 300 in Court Roles.

STUDENT GROUPS MARCH

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., April 19.—Resplendent in silks and satins, with a cloak of ermine around her shoulders and a richly jeweled diadem on her head of soft black waving hair, Miss Mary Jo Matthews, University of West Virginia senior and thrice outstanding beauty of the institution, rode today as "Queen Shenandoah XII" at the head of the parade that climaxed the sixth annual apple blossom festival.

Eighty thousand pairs of eyes were riveted on the brunette beauty as she occupied the throne seat of the royal float in a parade that stretched its length over a six-mile course. At the royal box at the Winchester Fair Grounds the entire line passed in review before her majesty and her court of 300 attendants, including 65 princesses from Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland, sponsors, maids of honor, heralds, flower girls, pages and court jesters.

The queen occupied a float decorated in pink, gold and white, and the golden throne chair was of a faience pattern, trimmed with gilt and ethereal feathers. Maids of honor stood on either side and a fester set on the floor performing for her majesty.

The University of West Virginia Band was the queen's personal escort, but there were many others in the first division of the monster procession. She Defendants' Friends Mob Them as O Street Case Is Ended.

A jury returned a verdict of not guilty, exonerating Wilbur L. Dorsey, Jack Stein, Bart Kennett, colored, and Emmett Johnson, colored, of gambling charges in a six-count indictment, before Chief Justice Walter I. McCoy in criminal division of the District Supreme Court last night.

Friends of the defendants packed the courtroom when the verdict was returned. Half a dozen deputy marshals experienced difficulty in preventing a demonstration as the jury foreman answered "not guilty" when each count of the indictment was polled separately. When court adjourned the scores of spectators mobbed the defendants, slapping their backs and shaking their hands in congratulation.

Four Naval Fliers Killed As Planes Collide in Air

Craft Crash Aloft and Plunge 600 Feet to Earth at San Diego, Returning From Aerial Gunnery Practice; Three Meet Instant Death.

San Diego, Calif., April 19 (A.P.)—Four naval fliers met death this afternoon when two planes collided and fell 600 feet, just north of the golf course at Coronado.

The dead: Lieut. William K. Patterson, Ensign Harold R. Sheehan, Ensign Herbert Bassett, Jr., naval reserve.

H. H. Brown, radioman, first class. The two planes, piloted by Lieut. Patterson and Ensign Bassett and carrying Brown and Ensign Sheehan, respectively, as passengers, were attached to scouting squadron No. 8 of the U. S. 3. Lexington and were operating at the time from the North Island Naval Air Station. They were returning from aerial gunnery practice near Oceanside and had swung inland at the air station field. Ensign Bassett's plane, it was reported at headquarters of the aircraft squadrons, battle fleet, apparently collided with that piloted by Lieut. Patterson and the two fell into the shallow waters covering a mud flat near Alameda avenue and First street, Coronado.

The three officers were killed instantly, their bodies being recovered from the cockpits of the wrecked planes. The ambulance from the Coronado Fire Department was rushed to the scene. Brown, apparently, had been thrown clear. He was still living, and was rushed to the Naval Hospital, where he is being treated. He is said to have a fair chance of recovery. The planes were demolished. Lieut. Patterson, who was married, was born in Pennsylvania in 1897 and entered the regular Navy from the session of the subcommittee which he himself headed.

The only development today was the contention by the German delegation that Dr. Schacht's proposals contained nothing of a character that should have broken up the conference.

No New German Plan.

The Germans brought forward no new proposal, however, and so far as it could be learned they showed no inclination to withdraw the conditions which their chief had proposed for any increase of his offer of 37 annuities averaging 1,650,000,000 marks (approximately $396,000,000).

It was said in German circles that their figures were susceptible of a certain increase, but no indication was given that they would increase their offer without maintaining the political considerations which Dr. Schacht declared were absolutely imperative if Germany paid any more than he had offered.

Until those conditions have been withdrawn it is made plain in allied circles that there is absolutely no chance of reopening negotiations.

Among persons close to the French delegation, there was an inclination to regard activities of the Germans today as tending to nothing more than shifting the responsibility for the breakdown of the conference.

Paper Not Published.

The German delegation refused to give out its memorandum here, but Berlin dispatches quoting the German press cite Dr. Schacht's references to Upper Silesia and former German colonies.

Neither the Americans nor the other allied experts would reveal the contents of Dr. Schacht's memorandum. All they were willing to say was that if any one wanted to know to what extent political considerations had been thrown into the debate they had only to consult the memorandum.

They added that the Germans had only to publish it as it was read before the committee to establish the truth. Dr. Schacht was said to have supplemented his memorandum with remarks in the course of which he referred to political questions in such a way as to provoke a remark from one of the allied delegates that "you want to revise the Treaty of Versailles."

Reports of efforts by the Germans to reopen negotiations were regarded by the French as closely connected with the source of certain dispatches from Berlin referring to "unconfirmed reports that efforts will be made to find a new basis for discussion."

French Attitude Firm.

The French attitude is that France did not demand calling the conference of experts, but now that it has been convened would prefer it to come to some sort of agreement. That agreement, however, the French press maintain, must be based on the principle that the expense of any encroachment of the Treaty of Versailles.

The Temps, which often reflects the view of the French government, points out that the Germans asked for the present conference to settle the reparations problem so that Germany could obtain early evacuation of the Rhineland.

"And it is the chief German expert," the newspaper adds, "who by his obstinacy in an absurd proposition which barely covers war debts, risks disrupting the conference, with consequences which will be serious for the general situation and for peace."

Failure of Lord Revelstoke's subcommittee to find a basis of agreement between the Germans and their creditors weighed rather heavily on the Paris bourse today, but the man in the street accepted the failure philosophically.

Most Frenchmen consider the Dawes plan preferable to any new arrangement. They prefer to accept failure and be done with it rather than permit the Germans to continue negotiations for a few days longer with the single hope of settling the question as to who is responsible for the breakdown.

HEAD OF ENGLAND'S DEBT EXPERTS DIES

Lord Revelstoke, Banker, Is Stricken in Sleep at His Paris Apartments.

NEWS SHOCKS DELEGATES

Paris, April 19 (A.P.).—Reparations experts, already gloomy over threatened failure of their conference, were shocked today by the sudden death from heart failure of Lord Revelstoke, world-famous banker and head of the British delegation.

Lord Revelstoke was found dying in his bed at his private apartments by his valet. He was dead when a physician arrived.

All of the delegations to the conference paid highest tribute to the British leader after Chairman Owen D. Young had announced at the meeting this morning that Lord Revelstoke had died at his apartments at 27 Rue Faubourg St. Honoré.

Lord Revelstoke had appeared in good health yesterday. He had presided at the meeting of his special bankers' committee in a final attempt to prevent breakdown of the reparations negotiations. The British delegates last saw him about 7:30 p. m. He was in good spirits, smiling and joking.

Lord Revelstoke smoked his pipe and read the newspapers before retiring early. This morning his valet was surprised that he was not up at the usual time and went to his bedroom, where he found the banker unconscious and breathing with difficulty. He immediately called a physician.

Lord Revelstoke was one of the most interesting figures in the British financial world, a polished and diplomatic figure who was a friend of kings and an associate of powerful financial leaders. His quiet bearing never betrayed the iron determination in his character. He was 65 years old and was not married. The title passes to his brother, Cecil Baring.

Lord Revelstoke was a director of the Bank of England and a partner in Baring Brothers & Co. He was a commander of the Legion of Honor. He succeeded his father to the title in 1897.

Policewoman Says Officers of Her Sex Possess Better Training.

Blaming parents for the increase in immorality among young persons, Lieut. Mina C. Van Winkle, of the Woman's Bureau of the District Police Department, told the Men's Club of the Foundry Methodist Episcopal Church last night, that "if parents would look after their children properly a police woman's bureau would not be necessary."

She also took a rap at churches and citizens organizations for their failure to do their part in cleaning up cities. "If the church can't help the police keep a city clean, all the prayers in the world are useless," she said, adding that "the church should start preparing its members for citizenship duty."

Lieut. Van Winkle declared police-men have more brains than policemen. In this connection she pointed out that a policeman needs only a third grade grammar school education to qualify for his post, while most of the policemen are graduates of college.

THREE HURT AS AUTO CRASHES INTO HOUSE

Car Tears Away Radiator in Plunge Through Building Near Hyattsville.

VICTIM MAY LOSE AN EYE

Three persons were injured, one seriously, early yesterday morning when the automobile in which they were riding plowed through the first floor of the frame house of John Neitzky, a garage owner, at Agar and Queens Chapel roads, near Hyattsville, Md.

After leaving the roadway, out of control, the automobile crashed into the side of Neitzky's home, tearing through the living room and emerging from the far side of the house.

H. S. Inman, 35, of Brentwood, Md., said by Maryland police to have been the driver of the car, is being treated at Garfield Hospital for a fractured right leg and lacerated face. It is feared he may lose his right eye.

Mrs. Thelma Wheat, 30, of 1438 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, and Clifford McMurtrey, 30, of 220 E street northeast, a clerk in the City Post office, were treated at Sibley Hospital for lacerations and shock.

Police said another woman, whose identity they have not ascertained, also was in the crash, but was uninjured. Maryland State Policeman J. M. Bradley, who is investigating the accident, said he learned the automobile crashed into Neitzky's home while traveling at a speed estimated at 50 miles an hour. He said he also learned the driver of the car, is being treated at Washington after having visited a Chillum, Md., night club.

H. L. Leonard, chief of the rescue squad of the Prince Georges County Volunteer Firemen's Association, and Chief Andrew Gasch, of the Bladensburg Volunteer Fire Department, were notified of the crash and gave first aid to the injured, later bringing them to Washington hospitals.

Inman, police said, is employed as an engineer at Gallinger Hospital. Neitzky said he was asleep when the crash occurred. The machine plowed through his home with such force that it carried an iron radiator in the living room from its base into the yard. Other objects in the living room were demolished.

Big Forest Blaze Fought by Troops

Five Spanish Mountains Are Swept by Fire; Towns Are Evacuated.

San Sebastian, Spain, April 19 (U.P.).—The government tonight ordered troops from rural towns and communities to aid farmers in fighting a tremendous forest fire which started at Mount El Duale, near Tolosa, and rapidly spread to the border of Navarra Province.

Residents of the district were forced to evacuate their homes before the advancing flames. Railroad and telephone communications in the area were disrupted.

The flames spread over five mountains, throwing out terrific heat and presenting a fantastic appearance as the fire fighters vainly attempted to halt the blaze.

U. S. WOMEN NURSE WOUNDED IN SONORA

More Than Score Are Killed in Battle Near Mesquite, Rebels Declare.

CALLES ADVANCE NEARS

Tucson, Ariz., April 19 (A.P.).—Wounded Mexican rebels and rebel refugees reaching Tucson today reported a fierce battle this morning between federal and revolutionary troops at the small border town of Mesquite, Sonora, in which the loyal forces were completely victorious.

Estimates of the dead and wounded varied. The Mexican rebels here said between 20 and 25 lost their lives and many more were wounded. It was also reported that several American women visiting near the border went across the line to the battlefield and acted as nurses.

The rebel refugees said that Mrs. Arthur Hardgrave, wife of the former president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, and her guests at the exclusive Hacienda De La Osa, assisted the wounded soldiers. Mrs. James H. Jones, visiting at the ranch of a physician at San Fernando, Ariz., and the physician's wife, Mrs. A. Hardy, also helped.

Observers said the rebels surrendered the town after a two-hour engagement. The 195 federal troops who besieged the place were said to have captured between 30 and 40 prisoners. Lieut. Encarnacion Rojas, with 18 of his rebel followers, fled across the border to Mexico.

Rebels were brought to Tucson by United States border patrol officers.

Booty Captured by Federals.

Federals at their northwestern Mexican headquarters in Mexico, Lower California, declared that a checkup of the Mesquite battlefield showed that about 80 entrenched rebels. War munitions captured by the federals were listed as 26 horses, one truck, six rifles, 3,000 rounds of ammunition. Six rebels were captured, they said.

Early today three federal planes flew over Nogales, Sonora, rebel headquarters, dropping bombs, which did no damage, and pamphlets signed by rebel officials who had deserted the insurgent, seeking more desertions.

Gen. Ambrosio Rodriguez, federal commander, announced that federal planes would bomb rebel troops wherever they were sighted each day until the revolution ended.

Mexico City, April 19 (A.P.).—The insurgent army encamped at Nogales, southern Sonora, was subjected yesterday to repeated bombing raids by federal planes. These flew from San Blas, Sinaloa, where the main federal army of 10,000 men is preparing to march against the rebel stronghold. The exact strength of the rebels at Nogales was unknown here but was estimated at about 4,000 or 5,000.

Calles Will Move Soon.

The work of repairing railroad bridges destroyed by insurgents north of San Blas is proceeding rapidly and Secretary of War Plutarco Elias Calles reported that his troops would be able to move northward within a few days.

Gen. Juan A. Almazan today was still in the column at Casas Grandes, Chihuahua, for the march through Pulpito Canyon to Sonora. His 10,000 men were expected to be ready to advance within a day or two. The forces of rebel Gen. Gonzalo Escobar were reported entrenched at Nogales and federal soldiers were being sent to make that position uncomfortable by frequent bombing.

Dispatches to local papers today told of the killing of 22 regular rebels in clashes in three states. Eleven were killed by home guards at Concordia, Sinaloa, after several hours of fighting. Federal troops killed five rebels in a brief exchange of shots at Ameca, Jalisco, and drove the band into the mountains. At the mining town of Concepcion Del Oro, Coahuila, troops dispersed 100 insurgents and killed 5.

Pola, Italy, April 19 (U.P.).—George Bernard Shaw and Gene Tunney strolled leisurely among the Roman ruins on the Brioni Islands today.

The famous white-bearded writer and the former pugilist met for the first time at the Hotel Brioni after some months of reticence on the part of both. Tunney had made it known that he would be glad of an opportunity to meet the Irish writer and Shaw had made it known that he would be glad to meet the former heavyweight champion, but it rested there until they both arrived at the Hotel Brioni. Tunney, who was accompanied to the islands by his wife, said he could not "in good taste" discuss Mr. Shaw.

MELLON IS UPHELD IN MITCHELL BRIEF

Treasury Secretary Explains He Has Dropped All Business Posts.

SENATORS DEFER RULING

(Associated Press.) A decision on the right of Secretary Mellon to hold office was deferred again yesterday by the Senate judiciary committee, after it had received an opinion written by Attorney General Mitchell for President Hoover upholding Mellon.

The propriety of his serving had been questioned on the basis of an old statute forbidding the Secretary of the Treasury to be interested in trade or commerce.

Senator Reed (Republican), Pennsylvania, an intimate friend of Mr. Mellon, laid the Attorney General's opinion before the committee along with a letter from the Secretary stating that his sole business connections were those of a stockholder.

The committee adjourned without fixing a time to discuss whether to proceed on the inquiry into Mellon's service, which was ordered by the Senate, in adopting the resolution of Senator McKellar (Democrat), Tennessee, Chairman Norris said there was no intention of calling Mr. Mellon, in view of his letter.

Cites Previous Secretaries.

Senator Norris said the question had narrowed to the proposition of whether a stockholder in business enterprises could serve as Secretary of the Treasury under the old statute now in effect.

Senator Reed replied that if a stockholder could not be Secretary of the Treasury, every Secretary for the last 100 years had served in violation of the law, and it would be difficult to all the past hereafter.

The opinion of Mr. Mitchell came somewhat as a surprise. There had been no intimation that the President had asked for a ruling.

The letter of Secretary Mellon, which had been addressed to Senator Reed, explained that he had resigned all directorships and other executive positions in the business world before entering the cabinet eight years ago. It stated his business interests, noting that both before becoming Treasury Secretary and now he owned "a substantial amount of stock" in the Gulf Oil Corporation, the Aluminum Co. of America and the Standard Steel Co., among other business corporations.

Holdings Less Than Majority.

Mr. Mellon added, however, that in all instances his holdings were "much less than a majority of the voting stock of such companies."

The letter of Secretary Mellon to Senator Reed follows:

"I understand that the Senate judiciary committee wishes to know whether I am now concerned in carrying on trade or commerce in violation of the law which makes such action a high misdemeanor and that the committee has asked you to meet with it at its session tomorrow morning.

"Before I took office as Secretary of the Treasury in March, 1921, I resigned every office that I then held in any corporation and resigned all my directorates in such corporations and I have not been since that time nor am I now a director or officer in any corporation for profit. I am a trustee or director of the University of Pittsburgh, Carnegie Institute and of several hospitals and charitable corporations, none of which, however, is engaged in trade or commerce or in any business conducted for profit.

"Before I became Secretary of the Treasury I sold every share of stock which I owned in any national bank, trust company or other banking institution and I have not since then owned nor do I now own any stock in such corporations.

Specifies Present Holdings.

"I owned then and I now own a substantial amount of stock in the Gulf Oil Corporation, the Aluminum Company of America, the Standard Steel Co. and other business corporations, but in every case my holdings are very much less than a majority of the voting stock of such companies.

"As far as these companies are concerned my active connection with them was severed in 1921 as completely as if I had died at that time. I have not concerned myself with their affairs and have not endeavored to control or dictate their operations in any way. It should be needless to add that I have in no way taken part in the adjudication or settlement of any Federal taxes upon such companies and I have consistently refrained from even inquiring about their tax affairs.

"Senate resolution two mentions also the prohibition against an internal revenue officer being interested in the production of distilled spirits, as if to imply that there was some question of my having violated that statute. As you know, I had an interest in A. Overholt & Co., but that company discontinued the manufacture of distilled spirits several years before the prohibition amendment was adopted. The company was put in liquidation in the hands of a trustee before I became Secretary of the Treasury, the trustee having full discretion as to the liquidation of the assets. This company has been fully liquidated, the former owners, including myself, have been paid for their interests, and I have no further connection or interest in that enterprise or any other of that nature.

"All the foregoing facts have been so often stated publicly that I had not supposed there was the slightest question about them in the mind of any person interested and I should be glad to have you explain the situation to any member of the committee who is not familiar with them."

RESERVE BOARD AIDS IN MYSTERY SESSION

Advisory Council's Promised
Statement About Meeting
Not Forthcoming.

JOINT CONFERENCE HELD

(Associated Press.)
Whatever action may have been taken yesterday at an unannounced joint session of the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Reserve Bank remained a secret at its conclusion. As the advisory council left the board room, members said a resolution had been adopted and would be given out. Nothing was forthcoming, however, and Walter Lichtenstein, secretary of the council, said he knew nothing of the council, which is composed of one member from each of the Federal Reserve districts, has no power to call meetings at any time, but therefore it has held quarterly meetings and usually adopted resolutions approving the action of the Federal Reserve Board. It has authority only to make recommendations to the board.

The council was said to have met in a session at a hotel to have in view the board to meet with it. This meeting continued for two hours. The Federal Reserve Board held an hour's session late in the afternoon, but no announcement was forthcoming when it adjourned.

Hrdlicka Sees Future Race Bigger, Brighter and Bonnier

Smithsonian Anthropologist Predicts Longer Life Span,
But With Mankind Beset by Increased Mental and Physical Diseases as Evolution Continues.

Philadelphia, April 19 (United Press).

The future world will be peopled by a race superior in intelligence, stature and beauty, blessed with a longer natural span of life, but perhaps beset by increased mental afflictions and destructive diseases, Dr. Ales Hrdlicka told the American Philosophical Society tonight.

Dr. Hrdlicka, who is curator of the division of physical anthropology of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, spoke on "The Future of Man in the Light of His Past and Present." He sketched what man has been in the past, pointed to evidences of continued evolution going on at present and then drew his deductions as to what man of future centuries may be.

The tendency, he said, is toward greater stature, more expressive and refined appearance, and greater intelligence.

But man is paying for these glories, he believed, by losing much of his hair, by increased nasal trouble due to changes in the facial structure, increased digestive disorders which follow increased mental concentration, and the weakening of several organs, including particularly the feet.

Looking into the future, Dr. Hrdlicka was specific in picturing some of the changes evolution will work in man. Increased intelligence will bring larger brains, he said. The skull will probably be thinner because softer foods will reduce the stresses of mastication and remove the necessity for heavier bone structure. Man's head will be wider and higher and it will have less hair upon it.

"The stature," he said, "promises to be even somewhat higher than today among the best nourished and least repressed groups. But there is no indication as yet that it may reach what today would be termed giantism."

"The face will, it may be expected, proceed slowly in refinement and roundness and character. The nose, deeper set, the nose prominent and rather narrow, the mouth still smaller, the chin more prominent, the jaws even more moderate and less regular, the teeth tending to smaller, diminished mostly in number, even less regular than now in eruption and position and even less resistant."

"The future of the beard is uncertain, but no such weakening as with the hair of the head is as yet observable. The body will tend to slenderness in youth, the breasts toward small, the pelvic parts but little affected, the lower limbs toward long, the upper limbs toward short, the hands and feet toward narrower, the fingers toward more slender, with the fifth toe probably further diminished."

SMITH REFUSES AID TAMMANY CHOICE

Ex-Governor Serves Notice on District Leaders in Election of Chief.

WALKER HELD IN CONTROL

New York, April 19 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith today "washed his hands," politically speaking, of the task of selecting a new leader for Tammany Hall.

Following a 30-minute conference with Tammany's subcommittee of seven district leaders named to advise the "Big Four"—Smith, Mayor Walker, Senator Wagner and Surrogate Foley—on the leadership, Mr. Smith called reporters into his offices at No. 331 Madison avenue, and said brusquely: "I've had typewritten all I am going to say to you fellows, and that's all I'm going to say."

He then read the following: "I have been informed by the committee of seven that it is the policy of the executive committee to select for leader one of their own members."

"I have advised the committee of the policy of that policy. I am of the opinion that the executive committee is fully qualified to make that decision among themselves."

The seven Tammany district leaders, headed by Peter J. Dooling, the committee's chairman, had left before Mr. Smith dictated his statement. None of the other members of the "Big Four" were present.

Immediate interpretation was placed on Mr. Smith's statement that the Tammany executive committee, which had been elected to go ahead on the "Big Four" for four terms and as Tammany's favorite son for the presidency, served as a check on the district leaders that he would not be dictated to by them.

It has been the contention of the district leaders, who have elected the Tammany executive committee, that the "big four" were to be limited in their choice to any one of the present 35 male district leaders.

Had the Tammany leaders been willing to "leave the field wide open," as one of Mr. Smith's friends put it, the former governor would have given the organization which he grew up with the benefit of his counsel.

As matters stand today, however, Mr. Smith has definitely refused to counsel with them; has told the leaders that he has no say in the matter and has told Tammany that if matters don't turn out for the best under the new leadership Alfred E. Smith will not be to blame for it.

Through the committee of seven with United States Senator Wagner. A meeting has been arranged at the bar association for the selection of a new leader. It can be predicted that Senator Wagner will take the same course as did former Gov. Smith—refuse to be limited in a choice of his advice.

As an outcome of Mr. Smith's attitude in the leadership muddle, it seems apparent that one of the present Tammany district leaders will be chosen leader of Tammany Hall to succeed George W. Olvany, resigned. The election probably will take place next week.

John F. Curry, veteran leader of the Fifth district, tonight appeared to be the favorite as the district leader. He is a close rival, Martin G. McCue, of the Twelfth, had lost some of his strength, it was said.

Neither the effect of Smith's refusal to act, or to attempt to force his will on the Tammany committee, would appear to end Mr. Smith's chances of being elected to the national picture as candidate for President in 1932.

Numbers on the gun had been filed away by Maj. Goddard, who was to determine them. Oswald has not been found by police.

A squad of detectives under Lieut. Arthur E. Brison was sent tonight to Kirkland, Ill., when Peter von Frantz, Chicago gun dealer, testified that he sold six machine guns to F. Thompson of the St. Valentine day gang. Four of the guns were purchased less than two weeks before the massacre, he said. Kirkland is a small town about 60 miles west of Chicago.

The body was recovered by 5-year-old George Sanford, who lives near Gleason Point. He told his father, who took him to the police station, of the death of his father recently, and had spoken of suicide several times before he disappeared April 6.

FILM CASE JUDGE

MAJOR CASE AS TRUST

Leading Producers and Distributors Called Violators of Sherman Law.

EXHIBITORS CHARGE PLOT

Los Angeles, Calif., April 19 (A.P.).—Ten leading motion picture producing and distributing companies were indicted by a Federal grand jury today on charges of conspiracy to violate the Sherman antitrust act.

Nine of the concerns recently had sought to prevent grand jury investigation of such charges, claiming that it might prejudice a civil case on the Sherman act. The ten indicted firms are: Warner Brothers; West Coast Theaters, Inc.; Fox Film Corporation; Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corporation; First National Pictures; Universal Film Exchange; Paramount-Pamphlet Players-Lasky Corporation; United Artists Corporation; Pathe Exchange, Inc. and Vitaphone, Inc.

The civil case was continued when the Government determined to prefer criminal charges. Scores of independent exhibitors have charged that they were virtually driven out of business because of their inability to obtain first run or desirable feature pictures. They claim that to obtain the films they had to agree to accept allegedly unlawful terms made by the film exchange.

Federal Judge Edward J. Henning instructed the court clerk to issue bench warrants, if necessary, but representatives of the indicted film officials insisted that bonds be filed immediately in the amounts demanded.

Under the provisions of the Zihlman bill, a board of education consisting of nine members would be elected by popular vote, three every year. The Commissioners would divide the city into from 50 to 100 precincts and set up polling places in the schools.

The Moore bill directs the Secretary of War to make a survey and draw up plans for a substitute for Chain Bridge, and authorize $10,000 for expenses. Upon the completion of the plans Moore would introduce legislation to provide for the construction of the bridge.

F. D. JONES IS DEAD; PROMINENT LAWYER

Former Secretary of Trade Board, 42, Succumbs Suddenly in Office.

AUTHORITY ON COMMERCE

Franklin D. Jones, lawyer, author and first secretary of the Federal Trade Commission, died suddenly at his physician, Dr. W. A. Morgan, 1746 K street northwest. Death was attributed to heart disease.

Mr. Jones was a recognized authority on trade associations. His book on "Trade Associations and Law" is recognized as a standard authority, while his book on "The Historical Development of the Law of Business Competition" is ranked among the most thorough and scholarly treatments of that subject in print.

At the time of his death, Mr. Jones was a member of the law firm of Davies, Jones & Beebe, counsel for the American Waxed Paper Association, Paper Box Manufacturers Association and the National Kraft Paper Manufacturers Association. Formerly, he was counsel for the National Dairy Products committee and the National Wholesale Lumber Association.

Graduated from Iowa University.

He was born in Webster, Neb., October 5, 1887, the son of Daniel and Fannie Louise Roberts Jones. He graduated from the University of Iowa in 1910 and later studied law at George Washington University, where he received his degree of bachelor of law in 1918. About that time he became connected with the staff of the then newly organized Federal Trade Commission, serving as acting secretary and assistant secretary of that body in 1918. Subsequently, he served as an attorney for the commission and as a member of its board of review. In 1919 he resigned from the commission to become a partner in the newly organized law firm of Davies & Jones. He was one of the principal counsel in the Ford Motor Co. stock valuation case and was prominently identified with numerous other important cases.

Several years after the close of the World War, Mr. Jones sacrificed most of his law practice to give his services to relief work in Europe.

Given Award by Greece.

He took part in operation of the work from this country, concentrating on the situation in Greece. In recognition of this work, he was honored by the Greek government with the award of the Cross of the Order of the Saviour. Mr. Jones was a Mason, a member of the Burning Tree, Congregational Church and the American Friends of Greece.

He is survived by the widow, Mrs. Anna Belle Jones, two children, Leonard Fike, 12 years old, and Dorothy Fike, 8 years old; his mother and three sisters, who are now on their way to Washington. Funeral arrangements will be made after their arrival.

by Sergt. O. J. Lettman, at 704 O street northwest. They were charged in the indictment with setting up a gaming table for the purpose of taking race horses bets and playing dice and card games.

Dorsey was without counsel throughout the three days of the trial. His attorney, T. Morris Wampler, advised Chief Justice McCoy when the case was called for trial that he was engaged in trial of a case in another branch of the court, but the court refused a postponement and offered to appoint counsel for Dorsey. He refused. Stein, defended by E. McDonough Hawkins, contended he had gone into the O street establishment to place a bet and denied he had any connection with the place. The two negroes, defended by Attorney Harry T. Whelan, also said they went into the place to make a bet and were arrested before they had opportunity to do so.

The colored men declared they were beaten by members of the raiding squad at the First Precinct Station House and denied they signed a confession, which implicated them as employees and Stein as operator of the place. The defense contended, in argument to the jury, that the police had not only beaten the defendants, but also forged the alleged confessions.

Assistant District Attorney William H. Collins, nemesis of the Capital's gambling fraternity, conducted the prosecution. In the past year, Collins has gained convictions against seven men on gambling charges and previous to that only one other conviction had been gained by the district attorney's office in such cases since the beginning of the twentieth century.

with him as he faced Tuttle's agent and said, "I'll be with you as soon as I get my topcoat." A few minutes later, while walking out of the hotel, he collapsed and died.

There is nothing to indicate that any of the large fortune he obtained remains. He lost most of it in stock market speculation, and the fraction that was left when he fled from New York is believed to have been spent. Philadelphia, April 19 (N.Y.N.J.). David Steinhardt, fugitive "keyman" in the New York bankruptcy investigations, who committed suicide here today, left three letters, one addressed to the New York World, one to Attorney Tuttle and one to his wife.

Mrs. Steinhardt and Maria were held as material witnesses. They were taken to the station house, where Maria was released on her own recognizance and Mrs. Steinhardt was later released in nominal bail.

The three letters were turned over to Capt. G. L. Strickland, in charge at the Sixth District Station, and will be released tomorrow morning after the inquest, which has been set for 9 o'clock and at which Coroner Fred Schwartz will preside.

Salem, Ark., April 19 (A.P.).—The preliminary hearing for Ed Burris charged with murder in connection with the burning to death of his wife and three children a month ago was postponed today until Monday morning in view of the fact that the two general assemblies call the attention of all synods and presbyteries to the coming rules and agreements already entered into and suggest that they act in the strictest accordance. The Southern Presbyterian General Assembly is to meet at Montreal, N. C., May 18-23.

MISSISSIPPI CAVE-IN BRINGS FLOOD FEARS

Large Forces of Men Work to Prevent Huge Crevasse From Opening.

RIVER LEVEE CRUMBLES

Snow Lake, Ark., April 19 (A.P.).—Large forces of men were engaged tonight in a desperate but apparently winning struggle to prevent a huge crevasse from opening at Knowlton, where caving banks caused 800 feet of the main Mississippi River levee to crumble. It was at Knowlton, near here, that a break in the levee two years ago cost 27 lives.

A dirt loop hastily constructed back of the cave-in, still held and no further crumbling of the river bank had occurred since several carloads of rock were dumped into a hole made by the high water under the base of the levee. Lieut. Col. F. B. Wilby, United States engineer in charge of the Memphis district, said a willow mat would be sunk at the cave-in as quickly as possible to prevent further disintegration.

The cave-in section, engineers said, extended from the levee to the channel of the river.

Barges and steamboats sent to the place of the threatened crevasse were loaded with thousands of feet of heavy timber, rock and other material to reinforce the river levee. Gov. Harvey Farnell dispatched a number of tents to provide shelter for families fleeing their homes in fear of a break.

Crumbling of the levee resulted from a heavy current that undermined the base of the embankment, against which water has been backed for several weeks. It was feared here that should a break occur in the loop levee, the dike at Laconia Circle would be unable to resist the onrush of water and Snow Lake would be flooded. Such a break also would result in the inundation of thousands of acres of rich farm land, now in cultivation, and add to the water in the backwater sections.

THE REPARATIONS CRISIS.

The next few days should disclose whether the astonishing demands made by Dr. Schacht in behalf of Germany constitute merely a move in the reparations game or whether they mark a definite break between Germany and the late allied governments. The first impression of the negotiators was that Dr. Schacht had decided to wreck the conference and take refuge in the clause of the Dawes plan which protects Germany against excessive exactions.

Assuming that Dr. Schacht was merely maneuvering for better terms when he laid down what appeared to have been an ultimatum, the disparity between Germany's figures and those of the allies is so great as to leave little hope that the committee of experts can now reach an agreement. Germany refuses to agree to pay more than $396,000,000 in any one year toward reparations, and even this amount is conditional upon the granting of concessions to Germany which are equivalent to a revision of the Treaty of Versailles. Germany demands the return of certain colonies, the Sarre Basin and Upper Silesia, on the ground that unless raw materials are made available it will be impossible to carry on German industries and thus raise the reparation money. The committee of experts is not empowered to negotiate upon territorial or other political questions. Therefore, if Germany should persist in the demands made by Dr. Schacht, the problem must be referred back to the governments themselves, and the proposed revision of the Dawes plan must be postponed or abandoned.

The German members of the committee, including Dr. Schacht, had led the other experts to believe that an accord was possible, although at no time were the figures on the respective sides within the range of easy compromise. The injection of Germany's demand for return of territory makes an accord impossible, so far as the experts are concerned.

In some quarters the fear is expressed that Germany is contemplating the repudiation of the Dawes plan. This does not seem probable, in view of the injury to German credit that would be involved. The allies still have it in their power to apply coercive measure against Germany, under the terms of the Treaty of Versailles. When the League of Nations scheme was under consideration at the Paris peace conference Premier Clemenceau took good care to exclude from the covenant of the league all matters connected with the collection of reparations from Germany, and the penalties that could be imposed in case of German default. The power to impose penalties remains with France and her allies. But the breakdown of the Dawes plan would be a setback to all countries concerned, and would probably break down all the pacts that have been laboriously contrived to guarantee peace in Europe.

Underlying the reparations problem is the firm conviction in the minds of Germans that the Treaty of Versailles must be revised before there can be justice in Europe. They have never ceased to protest against the decisions at Paris, which swept away colonies, disarmed Germany, and imposed crushing reparations payments of indefinite amounts extending into the indefinite future. Germany has always contended that it had a right to know the total of what the allies demanded. Now that the committee of experts has agreed upon a total, it is found to be enormously larger than Germany is willing to pay.

Up to this time Germany has borrowed from the United States the bulk of the reparations payments to the allies. The rupture of the Dawes plan would instantly dry up the sources of credit in the United States, and would cause many American investors to tremble for the security of German bonds already outstanding.

Popular protests against paying the debts to America are to be expected in Great Britain, Italy and Belgium in the event of Germany's refusal to reach an agreement for the revision of the Dawes plan or her repudiation of the plan itself. Already the Labor party in Britain is making an appeal to the voters on the issue of revision of the debt to America. Italy's payments depend upon receipts of reparations from Germany. As for France's debt to the United States, there is no concealment of the fact that the French government will pay only when it collects an equivalent sum from Germany. Thus, if Germany should refuse to pay reparations, the allies will attempt to evade payment of their debts to the United States. American taxpayers in that event would face a loss of $11,000,000,000 or more.

WETS ON THE WARPATH.

Senator Blease holds an advantageous position in his fight to make American ships dry, to dry up Washington embassies and legations and to expose all dry-voting members of Congress who indulge in the flowing bowl. He is a personal wet without apologies and an official dry without hypocrisy. No more dangerous combination could be conceived. He can go as far as the most fanatical dry can, and then some.

At first glance the resolutions offered by Senator Blease might be mistaken for a sarcastic wet's notion of reducing the prohibition situation to an absurdity, but they may be found no laughing matter. There is no fury like that of an infuriated wet when he sees hypocrites drinking the divine ichor that is denied to him. "We are going to find out if they have wine on their tables why we can't have it on ours," says the nemesis of hypocrisy. Is the dedicated devotee of cocktails to be deprived of his rights, while other citizens, merely by traveling upon American ships, can drink all they please? Is the common herd to be kept dry while pampered officeholders swig down glorious drafts at embassies and legations?

"We are going to make these hypocrites dry," says Senator Blease. In this he is supported by genuine dries and indignant wets. These forces are on the warpath, and their activities will undoubtedly make it very dangerous for public men who pose as dries to possess or partake of liquor.

Although the dry law is not supposed to apply to foreign embassies and legations, it is to be noted that more than one dry dinner has already been given by the envoys and that the custom is spreading. Foreign governments may see some logic in Senator Blease's resolution calling upon them to send dry representatives to the United States. What is more reasonable than a decision on the part of the Canadian government, for example, to make its legation dry, in view of the fact that Canada is protesting against the sinking of a vessel by the American Coast Guard? The comity of nations will prevent the United States from going to excesses in chasing rum runners if foreign governments cooperate in enforcing prohibition by drying up their embassies and legations.

Now that liquor hypocrisy is to be visited by dire punishment in the form of indictments and disgrace, there is a better outlook for enforcement of the prohibition law. Wets who have been deprived of their toddy are hardly to be censured for turning the tables upon professional dries who drink. Hereafter no hypocrite will be safe, ashore or ashore. Informers, in the shape of disgruntled wets, will dog their footsteps on junketing transports, at customhouses and in the banquet halls of Washington.

D. A. R. LEADERSHIP.

At the close of the thirty-eighth Continental Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution the leadership of that great organization of 169,000 American women will pass into new hands. Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, who thus concludes her three-year term, has achieved a record for notable service which will place her high among the foremost presidents general of that organization. She leaves to her successor the heritage of a clearly defined policy of patriotism and support of American institutions.

The retiring D. A. R. leader has instilled a strict regard for discipline within her organization—a much needed example for the country as a whole. Her leadership in dispersing a pacifist movement led by a small insurgent group seeking to curtail activities of the D. A. R. organization for the promotion of national defense was but one of the outstanding achievements of Mrs. Brosseau's administration. The open-minded, fair and courageous way with which she directed the battle against efforts to overthrow the principles of the society revealed the heroic strain of revolutionary ancestors.

Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart, the newly elected president general, brings a lifetime of intelligently directed effort to the service of the D. A. R. The heavy majority vote received by Mrs. Hobart is evidence of the confidence and esteem in which she is held by the entire organization. The society may look forward to a still more influential place in American public life.

UPSETTING NATURE'S BALANCE.

Cities on the shores of the Great Lakes are much concerned as the water levels continue to rise. Lake Michigan is 3.5 feet higher than the average level for 1927-28, and for the present no protest is being made as to how much water Chicago diverts. Factories and basements are flooded in a number of lake-shore cities, sewers are backed up, and in many cases vessels are unable to pass under bridges. It appears that conditions are worse at Chicago, but Milwaukee, Duluth, Cleveland and other cities are concerned by the rising waters.

The general explanation of meteorologists is that sun spots have caused increased evaporation, and hence greater precipitation. There is a theory that increased precipitation comes in 11-year cycles. It is also held that deforestation is responsible for the rapid filling up of the lakes in the high-water season. Even though sun spots cause increased rainfall, it is an undisputed fact that water drains off rapidly from land denuded of its forests.

The claim is made that tornadoes are becoming more frequent, costing the lives of hundreds of Americans each year. There may be a close relationship between this type of storm and denuded land.

The American people have not yet awakened to the tragedy involved in the disappearance of forests. It would be timely for some institution interested in the present and future welfare of the United States to make an exhaustive study of the causes of excessively violent wind and rain storms with a view to ascertaining whether or not nature's balance is upset by the destruction of forests.

THE ATTACK UPON MR. MELLON.

The Senate committee on the judiciary has ended a foolish and malicious attack upon Secretary Mellon by finding what the public had already ascertained long ago—that it was not necessary for the President to renew the nomination of a Cabinet officer holding over from a previous administration, and that Mr. Mellon was not disqualified for his office by reason of private business activities. These two points, raised against Mr. Mellon in the Senate on March 4, were palpably inspired by unscrupulous political motives.

If the chairman of the Senate committee on the judiciary were competent to fill that post there would have been no waste of time in inquiring into these matters. There are hundreds of precedents for the reappointment of an incumbent to the head of a department without sending his name to the Senate for confirmation. If Chairman Norris had been even poorly informed he would have known the facts—but he was not informed at all. On the second point, he glibly referred to impeachments as if the House could find verdicts of guilty. This may have been a slip of the tongue, but the slip was a slur upon Secretary Mellon which Mr. Norris' own committee has shown to be without justification.

FAMOUS AMERICAN DUELS.

From the Boston Transcript.

Don C. Seitz, a New York newspaper man of eminent record, who is really a New England product—having been brought up chiefly at Norway, Me., though he was born in Ohio while his Methodist minister father was itinerating there—is now writing about two books a year and they are all very interesting books. The latest is entitled "Famous American Duels," and it gives authoritative and duly thrilling accounts of all the great American affairs of so-called honor. Mr. Seitz's principal duels of American interest are the Woodbridge-Phillips duel on Boston Common in 1728 and the fearful Graves-Ciley affair in 1838. The Woodbridge-Phillips butchery was the first recorded duel in America. Early in the morning of the 4th of July, 1728, the body of Benjamin Woodbridge, a Boston merchant, a Harvard graduate, was found near the powder house on the Common (which stood on the hill now crowned by the Soldiers' Monument) with a rapier thrust through the heart. Woodbridge was prominent socially. The little Puritan town was upset, horrified. Inquiry developed the fact that Woodbridge, at the house afterward known as the Exchange Hotel, at the corner of State and the present Exchange streets, had had a quarrel with Henry Phillips and that the two had gone out to the Common by night to fight a duel.

As the sentiment of Boston was entirely against "affairs of honor," and as the circumstances seemed to indicate merely a terrible murder, the hounds were out at once for Phillips. He was 22 years old and was highly connected. His mother, Mrs. Marie Phillips, was a sister of Peter Faneuil, and his brother Gillingham was Faneuil's partner. Faneuil and the influential Phillips family took immediate steps to remove Henry from the reach of the warrant that was out for him. Peter Faneuil had a schooner, the pink-stemmed Molly, lying in the harbor. In the midst of an early fog, Phillips was rowed to the Molly and put on board. The schooner then sailed for a point between Castle and Spectacle Islands, where lay the British frigate Sheerness, with two of whose officers, Capt. Conrad and Lieut. Pritchard, Phillips had had the pleasant relations of Puritanic wassail. They took him on board. The news spread on shore that Phillips had fled to the warship, and constables were rowed out after him at once; but when the fog lifted it was found that the Sheerness had put to sea. Phillips was landed in France, and welcomed and employed there by Faneuil's brother, Jean, who was also his commercial representative. He never came back, but "went into a decline" and died in 1729.

The Ciley-Graves duel was a most extraordinary affair. Jonathan Ciley, of Thomaston, Me., the editor of the Thomaston Register and a classmate of Hawthorne and Longfellow at Bowdoin College, was a Democratic member of Congress. He made a speech in the House in which he denounced James Watson Webb, a Whig editor of New York City with a very bad reputation, as "a scoundrel editor, who had been bribed by the president of the Bank of the United States." Webb sent by Congressman William J. Graves, of Kentucky, a challenge to Ciley to fight a duel. Ciley refused to accept or receive the challenge on the ground that Webb was not a gentleman and also that he was not responsible for his life for a speech delivered in Congress. Under the "code," Graves, having accepted the duty of bearing the challenge, was now obliged to challenge Ciley himself. He did so, and the duel was fought at Bladensburg, near Washington, with rifles, at 80 yards distance. Two shots were exchanged without result. It was then agreed that if the next shot failed the distance was to be reduced and the firing continued. But at the next shot Ciley fell dead with a bullet through his heart. An immense public clamor followed this affair. Neither participant in the fight had any hostile feeling toward the other; the whole issue between them was a point of nominal honor under the code. The real offender in the matter, Webb, went Scot free. The contestants were both young and popular. Politics—Webster, Clay—became mixed up with the affair, which was one of the most potent influences operating for the eventual abolition of dueling in this country.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Street Disruptions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Whatever has happened to the coordination program for street repairs? Last summer M street from Thomas Circle to Connecticut avenue was repaved. Go up and take a look at it today—too wide open to put in new sewer pipe. Doesn't it seem as though that pipe might have been installed when the street was ripped up for repaving?

TAXPAYER.

I'm Alone and the Debts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The sinking of a foreign ship may be justified by our own law, but is it accepted as justified by the laws of countries owing us billions of dollars, with no very certain way to pay?

We do not know what may be cooking up abroad, but if it is trouble, are we ready? When one knocks a chip off some one's shoulder a number of questions should be thoroughly considered beforehand.

FRED T. H. FEIFINGER.

Tough on Politicians.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: So President Hoover has adopted a policy of making public the list of "sponsors" of those he appoints to office. It's a lowdown trick! Doesn't he know that the President is responsible for those he appoints to office, with and by, of course, the consent of the Senate? Hereafter a politician could put in a good word for a prospective officeholder without fear of jeopardizing his own position. Now he is to be held publicly responsible for his recommendations. It's a tough blow for the politicians; they won't find it easy or comfortable to work in the glow of pitiless publicity.

AURIGA.

Democrats in Council.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On Saturday evening there will meet in New York, at the call of John J. Raab, members of the executive and advisory committees and other influential members of the Democratic party. The meeting has been called ostensibly for the purpose of considering financial and means of meeting the $1,500,000 deficit that resulted from the unsuccessful attempt to elect Gov. Smith to the Presidency. The advisability of calling a meeting of the national committee or a general party conference also will be discussed, and it is not unlikely that the latter matter will receive more consideration than finances or deficit.

To whom credit should be accorded for the original idea of making the national committee and the Democratic party itself a year-round, militant organization is in dispute. Several prominent Democrats claim the honor. Probably the principal impetus was given the idea by the questionnaire distributed early in the year by Gov. Roosevelt, and the analysis of replies which he compiled. Gov. Roosevelt found that the time had arrived when it was no longer advisable to lay the Democratic party away in "cotton wool" following each election, and he urged that the task of building a new spirit in the party be got under way forthwith and continued without lapse through the future, to the end of being able to meet the Republican party in the election of 1932 on common footing. The suggestion will be considered. But will it be acted upon?

The suggestion finds the Democratic party, as is so frequently the case, split wide open. Why should a meeting be held so soon following a disastrous election, say those opposed to the idea, when about all it will accomplish will be to reopen old wounds? Southern Democrats particularly have adopted this attitude, and as long as they stand ready to go into a meeting with this idea in mind it probably would accomplish only that end. But, how, on the other hand, are the wounds to be permanently closed? Time may erase them, but it would be far better to hold a meeting in the interest of harmony.

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter.

By ROBERT QUILLLEN

MY DEAR LOUISE:

Your weekly allowance of one dollar proves me a kind parent and a wise one, but when I reflect how little I have taught you concerning the hardships of poverty, I feel ashamed and incompetent.

Limiting a 16-year-old girl to the expenditure of one dollar a week would seem to most people an evidence of parsimony instead of kindness, but it isn't an evidence of loving generosity to give the baby fire-crackers.

Some of your chums have much more to spend, and boast of their careless spending; but if you purchase less candy, you also purchase less future sorrow.

I want you to learn that a dollar represents so much hard human toil, and that to waste it is to waste backbone and weary labor.

I require you to keep a record of your expenditures and fine you when your books don't balance because I want you to acquire the habit of remembering where your money went and how easily it escaped you without giving you anything worth while in return.

Most wage earners and salaried people, impatiently waiting for pay day, wonder what became of their last earnings and feel cheated because they can't remember.

No matter what the future holds for you, nor how rich or poor you may be, you never will have reason to reproach me for teaching you reckless extravagance. You can't pull much of a wild ory on one dollar a week.

But if I have done well in this particular, I have failed in a greater matter and owe you an humble apology.

I have failed to give you any preparation for poverty. You are as ignorant as the millionaire banker's little daughter who began a story with the words: "I am starving," said Nellie. "Please, nurse, call the car and let us take a ride in the park."

You say of a frock that it cost "only" fifty dollars; you think a dress old when you have worn it three times; spots cause you no worry.

Having a colored girl who adores you has taught you to enjoy being waited on, and you have neither knack nor taste for sewing, cooking or keeping house.

It's all wrong. If you marry some rich man, it won't matter. But if you marry a poor one, you will have a lot of bitter lessons to learn and the learning will leave little romance in your system.

Perhaps you haven't time to learn household lore while school is going on; but when vacation comes, you may have yours in the kitchen.

A girl who doesn't know how poor people live hasn't got much education. And the girl accustomed to having everything she wants is preparing for a future in which she will think heaven is mad at her.

DAD.

and for the avowed purpose of dispelling whatever prejudices remain from the recent presidential campaign. Saturday night's meeting will be watched with interest. The entire country Democrat and Republican alike, would be benefited by the rebirth of a militant minority party, and there is reason to hope that such a movement can be got under way at the present time.

DEMOCRAT.

COURTESY OF THE SEA.

Every now and then there comes to public notice some incident characteristic of the fine courtesy of the sea, says Ocean Ferry Magazine. Ships have their "manners" just as gentlemen have, but they are usually displayed out on the broad ocean, unnoticed and unsung.

Often the courtesy takes the form of a fast run to help some merchantman or liner in distress. Sometimes it is supplying food or water to a craft hard hit by storm. Occasionally it is sending a surgeon to treat some poor fellow injured aboard a freighter that carries no doctor. Frequently it is careful wireless correspondence giving medical advice for a stricken sailor man too far away for personal attention.

And now a new, gracious, hat-sweeping gesture of the "apex vous, madame" sort may be recorded in the ocean's book of etiquette. It was bestowed recently upon the Red Star liner Belgien when this queen of the seas came to anchor at the Caribbean entrance of the Panama Canal.

The Belgien found five steamers scheduled to enter Gatun locks ahead of it. It would be a long wait, but it was prepared to take its turn. Then came the fine gesture from the five ships, whose masters agreed to defer their passage so that the largest vessel to transit the canal could have the right of way.

Capt. Morehouse was informed of the courtesy and the big liner and its 500 passengers moved toward Gatun, signaling thanks for the great honor to the five gallant gentlemen who stood aside to let a lady pass.

FRIENDLY KILAUEA.

When it comes to a real life-saver, Mount Kilauea of the Hawaiian Islands fills the bill fully and completely, says the Reno Gazette. Kilauea is a genuine volcano, one of the most notable in all the world, but it has its its and stars and is "variable as the shade by the light aspen made."

For years it will remain quiescent, only a timorous puff of steam or a little jet of fire showing that it still exists. At such times the bold tourist is let down on the crust of the "lake of fire," scorches the edge of postal cards on the heated lava to send to his friends, and rides back to Hilo disappointed at not seeing the volcano in eruption and half disposed to be skeptical about its streams of molten flint.

Then the tourist trade will diminish. Honolulu will begin to feel the strain. Hilo will be dull and the Hawaiian Islands will feel discouraged. Just at the bluest moment, however, the goddess Pele will come to the rescue, word will arise that Kilauea is showing signs of activity, and in an instant everybody will be smiling, business will pick up as it by magic and the old dreams of the United States, her resources are large, her sugar and pineapple harvests bring in millions every year and she is the center of a large commerce embracing a great part of the Pacific Ocean and its islands. But for a true friend in dull times she must look to Kilauea. She never has to look in vain.

PRESS COMMENT.

The Solid South.

Arkansas Gazette: Commander Byrd has picked out about the only Solid South a good Democrat can find.

Attention, Mr. Edison.

Detroit News: If Mr. Edison can find the right rubber weed and cross it with asparagus, maybe he could raise pencils with erasers on them.

Or Rubber Coated.

Philadelphia Inquirer: In future, congressmen who are inclined that way ought to take the precaution to have their trunks slinklined.

She's Gone, Thank Heaven.

Atchison Globe: What has become of the old-fashioned girl who gave her sweetheart a crocheted necktie that made all by her sweet little self?

Houston Post-Dispatch: The Democratic party is not dead, but four more years away from the pie counter is going to give it that boyish figure so much admired.

We're Waiting.

Gloversville Ledger-Republican: In his first published article Mr. Coolidge fails to express his real opinion of Congress. Whether he can continue to exercise restraint remains to be seen.

Good Exercise.

Boston Transcript: The professor who says everybody should walk four miles a day overlooks the fact that a four-mile ride with the rider hanging from a strap is pretty good muscular exercise.

Too Big a Problem.

Philadelphia Record: New rules at the White House have greatly reduced the number of handshakes. But the problem of decreasing the number of cocktail-shakers seems still to baffle the authorities.

Just Wait.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: Roxbury, Mass., is naming streets in a new section after music composers. Wait till the taxi driver gets ordered to drive to the corner of Rimsky-Korsakov avenue and Bresznski street.

Tut, Tut!

Philadelphia Public Ledger: We offer no opinion whether the forthcoming autobiography of former Gov. Smith will be better or worse than the one Mr. Coolidge is writing. But it will, at least, clear up one point in controversy. We refer to the one growing out of the story, widely circulated during the recent campaign, to the effect that Gov. Smith could neither read nor write.

Advice to Marlon.

New York World: As to the farm, wherever it will be, if Miss Talley has only $394,000, our advice to her is to buy a farm whose house doesn't need remodeling and whose water supply doesn't require the digging of an artesian well 40,000 feet deep at $5 a foot. . . . Anyway, we'll bet Miss Talley our farm against hers that if she buys a farm she'll be back on the stage again, singing to pay off the mortgage.

Deep Water.

Baltimore Sun: High water in the Great Lakes has brought from shipping men the comment that many vessels will carry much larger cargoes as a consequence. The six or eight inches of additional water in the channels and locks will permit carriers to load their full capacity instead of trying to fit the complaints against Chicago's diversion of water for sewage disposal and the consequent lowering of the lake levels in dry seasons, for now there is talk of lower freight rates when the vessels take full cargoes as a normal practice. From this standpoint, the depth of water is of wide importance.

POLITICAL TRADING LEAD TO GOVERNOR

Louisiana House Impeachment Inquiry Hears Charges Against Long.

EXECUTIVE SPEAKS TWICE

Baton Rouge, La., April 19 (A.P.).—Political trading was charged against Gov. Huey P. Long at today's impeachment inquiry by the House before it adjourned until Monday night.

Several witnesses from Shreveport testified they were forced to offer concessions to the governor before he would approve necessary legislation to provide the Army and Air Corps Aviation Wing Airport at Shreveport. A compromise finally was reached, they said, providing for the distribution of free school books to children in Caddo Parish in exchange for the governor's approval of the bill.

John D. Ewing, publisher of the Shreveport Times, told of a tempestuous interview between his father, Col. Robert Ewing, Democratic national committeeman, and Gov. Long, when Col. Ewing called to persuade the governor to agree to the airport bill. He said Gov. Long demanded that before he would approve the measure Shreveport citizens must make a public apology because he had been "ignored from functions" and that Caddo Parish (Shreveport) legislators support administration measures.

The charge that Gov. Long went about the State armed with a revolver was made by Jesse Johnson, of Shreveport, who said he saw the governor carrying a concealed revolver at a polling place. "He came in there and said he was the governor and that if anyone got in trouble he would get him out," he added.

For the first time since the impeachment hearing opened, Gov. Long left the executive offices under the assembly room of the House, where for days he had heard the shouts of his accusers through the open windows, and mounted the stump. He made two speeches today, one at Franklinton and another at Bogalusa, where he told his hearers his side of the impeachment case and charged he was forced to rely upon his voice for his message as "the newspapers would not tell the truth" about him.

Apartment Accused

Of Phone Rate Rises

Complaints that apartment house owners in many cases have increased their telephone service charges from 50 cents to a dollar a month yesterday were referred to People's Counsel Ralph B. Fiehrty by Earl V. Fisher, executive secretary of the Public Utilities Commission.

The service charge made by apartment owners is in addition to the regular charge fixed for telephone calls by the utilities commission and may come within the scope of the commission order of February 18, prohibiting subsidizing of electric current, Fisher said. The question was referred to Fiehrty for an opinion on the point, Fisher explained.

Jewels Taken From Home.

Breaking the glass in a rear window of the home of Mrs. Howard Elgin, 1476 Harvard street northwest, about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, an intruder ransacked the house and took jewelry valued at $600, police were told. Mrs. Elgin discovered the theft upon her return from a neighborhood store.

Radio Engineers and Scientists to Thresh Out Subject at Convention. Woman Pays $1,050 a Week to Aid Protege.

"As far back as last fall, Vincent Lopez and other eminent jazz maestros received up to $200 a week as a friendly consideration for regularly exploiting on their radio broadcasts the theme, 'Dream Boat' waltz of 'Fiorella.'"

"The record has been contracted for 18 fifteen minutes for a total sum of 18 weeks, with possibly renewals. That means over $1,800 investment for the radio facilities alone. With talent, &c., it spells about $20,000 for a three months' plugfest. It's a question whether the Bagby-Romilli songs could gross that much in sales, much less get that back to the composers."

By MARY BLAKE.

You have two very strong major traits, sensitiveness and aggressiveness. The latter no doubt patently a result of your fight against imaginary hostilities or criticisms. Because of your hypersensitiveness, you are quick to see a slight, often detecting one where none is intended. Your flesh is chronically raw and you wince at the least gesture in your direction. This weakness causes you much unnecessary misery, detracts from the attractiveness of your personality but can be overcome by the forgetfulness of self.

You attack him with a rush and a fury. You are very impetuous and are at all times intense and high-strung. You are impatient to get through one thing and go on to another. At times you are overaggressive, when diplomacy and not force is all that is required.

You do not know how to conserve your physical and mental energies. You do not know how to rest. You should strive for a greater serenity of body and mind. Be more modest. It has been said that a man without patience is like a machine without oil; he wears down his bearings and his work is of little value. A bad temper may ruin many a plan and many a friendship. The real enemies whom you must fight are within you. Your own passions are your worst enemies. Your weapons are desire and willpower.

Another castle I visited in England was Kenilworth. It is now in ruins, but there is enough left to give an idea of what it was like. I noticed how thick the ruined walls are. Built of heavy stones, they have a thickness of about 5 feet in some places.

Inside the castle walls was a courtyard where knights used to "joust." With lances leveled at each other, the two combatants would spur their horses ahead. There would come a crash, and one of the knights would be likely to be knocked from his saddle, the tilts were "for fun," and neither knight was likely to be much hurt. People looked out of the castle windows and must have been at least as

They were never very much interested until recently we met a man who has been married with a wife and a crowd. He is very strong for free love. He cares a lot for him. What do you think of such a man as a lover? Do you think he could be very happy knowing somebody who would not marry anybody? She quotes him all the time, and he makes it sound very good to him. Do you know anybody who was married in Greenwich Village who lived in Greenwich Village in New York. Isn't that where free love started? Please tell us all about it. He says that he knows somebody probably told her in prison that she should not marry. He says that no woman with her eyes should sit in a man measuring people. He says that small. Ever when the world was his people. He says that sales talk is still going strong, and seems to satisfy. And one reason that he likes it is that he knows that Village is the best in a place like Greenwich Village. He says that there are there the rent. And a man without a wife can hardly talk marriage, so in order to talk something he talks free love. He says that he is naturally a woman lover, and everybody is naturally a woman lover until they try it. Then they learn

EPIDEMIC OF WHOOPING.

EPIDEMIC of whooping cough is peculiar in several respects. One is that it is not much dependent on season. It is more common in winter, more so in it in February and March than in any other two months, the variation from month to month is slight. School children are especially but every year also can delay it adds to the safety of her child.

It is above all a disease of early childhood. One-half of all the children who have whooping cough have already had it. Ninety per cent of the children who get whooping cough get it in the home and on the street. Schools account for only 6 per cent of the infections. Therefore, the control of whooping cough the home outranks the schools as the place for.

Finally, whooping cough causes more deaths than measles and far more than any other acute contagious disease.

TWO MANY APPLIES

1. There is harm in eating too much of anything. The worst unced by weather. The greatest danger to life, when a person has whooping cough, is in August. The disease is more prevalent in the temperate zone than in the cold North. It is more prevalent in the rural districts than in the cities. In all of these particulars it differs from other acute respiratory diseases.

Another point in which it differs by comparison with other diseases is its fatality. The fatality of the disease is more likely to infect girls. It is also more fatal to girls. This peculiarity begins with early infancy.

It is also different in that it is somewhat different nature. It is especially bad on babies. If a baby under a year contracts whooping cough his chances of recovery are one in six. If he contracts it in his second year of life the chance of dying is one in fifteen. If he is in his third year of life it is 1 in 10. If he is older he is still better off, therefore, every mother should try to postpone infection as long as possible.

The apple is a whole-some food. It is rich in vitamins and salts and contains a fair number of calories, some of which are proteins. There are various ways of cooking apples to supply the vitamins. Frying apples and serving with meat. Salads containing apples contain enough fats.

It is a food that promotes thinness. It is not recommended for obesity, however. In that case the remedy would be worse than the disease.

COLD HANDS.

L. C. writes: My hands are always cold and have a bluish color.

The simplest procedure for you is to harden yourself and to live a more active and out-of-door life.

Take cold baths. Get out in the sun and snow.

THE HOME

The home is the basis of our society, the fundamental fact of our existence, it is our most elemental and primary institution. Even the animals cling for a time, at least, to a sort of parental group. Without the family, there would be chaos. The home with its family tie is sacred, we cherish it above all things, it is our first memory, our firm root.

Almost without exception the successful business and professional men are heads of families, have established homes and are carrying on the tradition and pride of families.

MORAL TRAINING IS THE FOUNDATION OF THE HOME, the sap which gives it its life tone. It is an invisible hand weaving what might be separated homes into a community bound by ties of love and faith.

Our rapidly changing social order has made the home, in many cases, an almost unknown factor. The forces of modern life tend to separate the members of the family, consequently, the home is more important than ever.

The problem of health, of education and of delinquency can not be solved without the aid of the home. It is in the home that character must be developed.

If you would have society better don't neglect the home.

The antidote to crime is training in the home

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL.

Odd the way things sometimes work out—or fail to, according to the point of view. A few months ago Libby Holman stood 7th street right up on end by the peculiarly seductive manner in which she interpreted a brace of song numbers that were not that way at all. In one of the more spiffy of the Loew-Public unit productions gracing the stage of the Palace Theater, it was by no means clandestinely bruited about at the time that Miss Holman was headed straight for an important role in a Ziegfeld glorification that was apt to burst Broadway wide open at any minute. On Monday evening Miss Holman will again decorate a local stage in the featured feminine role of Brady and Wiman's "The Little Show," at the Belasco, and Mr. Ziegfeld will lend his prestige to the premiere of an articulate picture, "Show Boat," at the Rialto. It is conceivable that the two may yet reach a business arrangement, although for the moment they seem to have exchanged frowns.

It is with the utmost hesitancy that I set the fact down on paper, having been pushed around the greater part of last week while New York tried to make up its mind, but every assurance is given by those who took me for the ride on the merry-go-round that beginning today the 40 Jazzmanians—and that is what they are to be called, instead of Melody Masters—under the direction of Leon Bruni, actually will occupy the stage of the Palace. The revue presided over by John Irving Fisher, the glib but not garrulous master of ceremonies. No, no odds—you'll be lucky to get even money!

Corbin Shelton, of the Rialto, whose costar just this minute disappeared outboard through my office door, reports that the advance sale for the premiere of "Show Boat" Monday night is already so good that it indicates a complete sell-out and large standing room crowd.

If in any previous compilation of celluloid chatter I have conveyed the impression that Buster Keaton is to be heard to talk at the Palace this week in "Spite Marriage," I beg to apologize, genuflect, roll over and play dead or anything you like, for, as I now understand it, he does no such thing. "Spite Marriage" is a sound picture, but not one addicted to conversation.

Percy Heath, seriously implicated in the authorship of "Close Harmony," an underlined attraction for early presentation at the Metropolitan, with Charles ("Buddy") Rogers and Nancy Carroll costarred, is in New York en route to Europe for a two months' vacation, the He de France having been nominated as the vehicle of transportation for the last leg of his journey. Do write and see the world, as you might say.

It seems that the appearance of Sammy Cohen, who achieved fame as the comic doughboy in "What Price Glory," in C. A. Niggemeyer's "Say It With Flowers" revue, at the Palace, marks the reunion of two old friends. It was "Mae Niggemeyer" who gave Sammy his first stage opportunity at the Criterion Theater, in Los Angeles, six years ago, when he was known only as a cabaret jazz dancer. Then came the "Glory" engagement, after many others had failed in their screen tests, or home work, or something, and now the two are back where they started. And Sammy, they say, is very, very funny.

The screen talkie business has now reached the stage where the bootlegging of mechanical devices guaranteed to surpass those in prevalent use has become acute. Some of the most of these dubious inventions are being peddled in the Times Square district of the hick town on the subway.

William Randolph Hearst is newsworthy. In addition to the news end of international, released through "In" versal, and of the M-G-M News, upon which his name appears as conspicuously as anything on the main title, he has just completed a deal with the Warner Brothers for the production of a new sound news to be launched in September, provided there is any news left by that time.

You can't tell a straw hat might be O. K. a month from now, at that.

YOUR BOY—YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, S. D.
The Parent Counselor

Father Love Overdone.
Dear Doctor of Problems—Mother died ten years ago and daddy gives me everything I need. But he is very jealous of where I place my affection. He has forbidden me to go with a boy I like very much. Of course we can not get married now as we both need to complete our education. I am a senior in high school. I love my father but I love my boy friend also. How can I change my father's attitude? He will hardly let me out of his sight for fear I will like some one better than I do him. He thinks I should be as glad to go with him as with any one younger. But oh, Doctor, how I love to be with young people of my age! Please tell me how to soften my father's attitude.

SENIOR GIRL.
This reminds me of the experience of Elizabeth Barrett. She met a young poet by the name of Mr. Browning. She was a sickly girl kept, as some folks say, "sick" by her father so he would have her all to himself. She was not allowed to see any young men or in fact any one else because she was too "sick."

Robert fell in love with Elizabeth and they were secretly married, she returning to her father's house for a week. During a dinner party, amidst the clatter of dishes and conversation, she stole out of the house carrying her pet dog Ruffles with her. Fortunately for the world the dog did not bark. If he had we should never have had the love letters of Elizabeth Browning.

For fifteen years Robert and Elizabeth loved and lived ideally. When she died she said, "There are only three things in this existence—Love, Life and Italy, and I have had all three."

When her baby was born she sent a letter to her father saying, "I wish you would come to see the baby. Robert and I will leave the house while you are here so you will not be obliged to see us."

The reply, she received was, "I am returning unopened all the letters you sent me during the past years. I should have sent them before but I did not know your address. Love comes in varied forms—separate and distinct. No daughter ever loves her father less though she loves her lover more.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.

Week-End Home Work.

My children never do their home work before Sunday night, but I think it should be done Friday afternoon. What do you think?

MOTHER.

Answer—I have said before that while I know that children should do their home work on Friday afternoon, I also know that they will not do it before Sunday night. And the reason is the same as that of a mother who has a paper to read before a club or a man who has an address to make at a noon lunch affair—both postpone the preparation until the last minute. It seems to be human nature.

Service to Readers.

Are all your leaflets on child training?

A RECENT SUBSCRIBER.

Answer—My leaflets cover a wide variety of topics—hundreds. The following are a few of the many: Art of Entertaining, Private Schools, Sex Expression of Youth, P. T. A. Program Suggestions, Education, Book List, Health Score, Care of Feet, Fear, Safety, Kleptomania, Job Getting, Married Women Working, Ben Franklin's Chart, Ideal Boy and Girl, Necking, Child's Intelligence, Keeping Friend and Stopping Kisser, Job of Being a Parent, Fantasy Thinking, Choosing a Life Partner.

You may underscore any of the above topics which interest you and send this clipping with a stamped, addressed, return envelope. To avoid confusion please do not inclose more than one request in a single envelope. But you may write as often as you wish.

GREAT WAR ARM TRAGIC FAILURE, D. A. R. IS GOOD

World Is Not Made Safe for Democracy, Says
Mrs. McCormick.

REPRESENTATIVE KAHN FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Mrs. Hoover Honor Guest at Dedication of $2,000,000
Constitution Hall.

That the World War tragically has not made the world safe for democracy was the declaration of Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, daughter of the late Senator Mark Hanna, last night in a speech before the thirty-ninth annual session of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

"Encouraged by the United States," continued Mrs. McCormick, "a score of nations became democracies, but one by one those popular governments have fallen. Dictators have arisen in Portugal, Spain, Italy, Hungary, Poland and recently the Soviet Union. The very cradle of the world conflict, has submitted itself to a tyrannical dictatorship."

Representative McCormick detailed other instances where unrest in the world is prevalent at the present time. She pointed out that the United States has not been able to remain peacefully isolated. In nonpolitical activities she claimed the United States freely cooperates with the League of Nations although it is plain "that we could not associate ourselves and our dear-bought independence with the cause of Nations, and its maze of international political intrigue."

Mrs. Kahn Also Speaks.

The speaker also pointed out the other measures America had taken in many lands where distress existed and the whole record of our material and spiritual contributions to mankind is a sharp challenge to those who would have us remain in a "cave of isolation," concluded the member of Congress.

The other speaker of the evening was Representative Florence Frick Kahn, representative in Congress from California.

Mrs. Kahn went on record as favoring a policy of national defense, pointing out that the policy of the country is to get into the first, and then get ready to fight it.

She urged that the Government be "brought back to the people" and declared "there should be no further extension of the rights of the individual."

She said that the Federal Government should not further encroach on the rights of the individual.

At the conclusion of the addresses a prayer was given. The development of the American flag, which was owned by the Peace Pipe Chapter, D. A. R., of Denver, Colo., and presented to the Daughters of the American Revolution, was the next feature of the program.

It was an impressive sight in the partially completed Constitution Hall when Mrs. Alfred J. Broese van Groenou, president of the D. A. R., and Mrs. Hoover walked through a line of American flags held by white-robed pages to the places on the platform. The two women were brief but impressive, and were given a nationwide broadcast through the radio. Mrs. Broese van Groenou, president of the D. A. The two women were brief but impressive, and were given a nationwide broadcast through the radio.

At the end of her address Mrs. Broese van Groenou introduced Mrs. Russell W. Magna, of Mount Holyoke, Mass., chairman of the Finance Committee, who announced that the fund for the completion of the hall would be raised by the sale of bonds. She said that the fund now stands at $1,000,000. Mrs. Magna, treasurer general, then announced that not a penny is owed on the Constitution Hall as it stands today.

The delegates then listened to presentations from three honorary presidents of the society: Mrs. William Cunningham Story, of New York; Mrs. George Trumbull Davis, of Kansas; and Mrs. George Maynard Minor, of Connecticut.

Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, honorary president general of Pennsylvania, was on the program, but did not appear because of illness. Her speech was read by a representative.

The benediction was pronounced by the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington.

Mrs. G. Wallace W. Hanger was chairman of the committee on arrangements for the dedication exercises.

At the morning session in Washington Auditorium Mrs. Broese van Groenou announced that she would contribute $50,000 toward the completion of Constitution Hall. The congress voted that $10,000 be set aside for the purchase of the hall, and the other $40,000 for the completion of the hall.

REVOLUTION SOLDIER MARKER IS UNVEILED

Children's Society Puts Tomb
at Grave of Unknown in Alexandria.

SECRETARY GOOD SPEAKS

The National Society of the Children of the American Revolution yesterday afternoon with appropriate ceremonies unveiled a marble tomb erected to the memory of an unknown Revolutionary soldier in the yard of the old Presbyterian Meeting House, on South Fairfax street, Alexandria.

The ceremonies opened in the church with invocation by the Rev. Dr. Palmer. "America" was sung by the congregation, with Mrs. George E. Warfield, as organist, playing on the oldest known usable church organ in America. Mrs. Van Orsdel spoke of the first visit of the Children of the Revolution to the old church in April, 1928, when the idea was conceived of placing a permanent tomb over the grave of this unknown Revolutionary soldier, replacing the temporary wooden marker erected by Alexandria Post, No. 24, American Legion, unveiled on February 22, 1928.

Discovery of Grave Recounted.

John B. Gordon gave a brief history of the grave and its discovery, paying tribute to the late Mrs. Mary G. Powell, to whose efforts is due this marker. When workmen were excavating for the foundation of St. Mary's Catholic Church in 1886 they discovered the old churchyard in the rear of their line and struck a coffin which was found to contain the body of a man clad in a Revolutionary uniform. They promptly opened the casket and reported the incident to the authorities.

Revere Descendant Unveils.

The unveiling was by Alexander Ladd, a descendant of Paul Revere, of the Peter Tufts Society, of Somerville, Mass., and Agnes Washington, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blackburn, of Washington, and a descendant of John Augustine Washington and a member of the Ann McCarthy Ramsay Chapter, C. A. R., of Alexandria.

Wreaths were laid and short addresses were made by the following: The National Society, Children of the American Revolution, Mrs. Joseph A. Van Orsdel, National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, Mrs. Eugene H. Ray, vice president general, of Kansas; National Society, Sons of the American Revolution, Frank B. Steele, secretary general, of Washington; the Sons of the American Legion Post, No. 24, of Alexandria; Past Commander George F. Cowdman, and the Ann McCarthy Ramsay Society, Children of the American Revolution, Ashton Powell, the son of Dr. Llewellyn Powell, of Washington, and the grandson of the late Mrs. Mary G. Powell.

Bootlegger-Bell Ringer And Autoist Flee Police

Becoming suspicious yesterday when they saw a man ringing several doorbells while an automobile, with a driver at the wheel, stood at the curb with motor running, Sgt. J. E. Thompson and Police Prohibition Officer E. C. O'Meara, of the Sixth Precinct, walked toward the automobile. When they did so the doorbell ringer fled and the man in the automobile leaped out and raced away.

The two policemen then inspected the automobile and found 190 quarts of whisky. The machine and the liquor were confiscated. Investigation revealed that the automobile was listed in the name of Eddie Dawson, of 128 H street northeast, but police found no such address.

Sgt. Thompson reported that in his opinion the man ringing the doorbells was going around from house to house soliciting orders for whisky. He had not decided last night whether to question residents of the neighborhood—Third street northwest, between I and K streets.

Prisoner Cut Down, Saved From Suicide

Benjamin Cullerson Tries to Hang Himself in Cell
After Arrest.

A negro prisoner was cut down in his cell in the Second Precinct Police Station last night in time to prevent his attempt at suicide by hanging himself from the ceiling.

He was arrested at Frederick's Hospital and returned to the cell, minus his belt, little the worse for his effort, according to police.

Benjamin Cullerson, 42, of 920 L street northwest, was arrested and brought to the station at 9:30 p. m., charged with three cases of assault. Police said that he got into an altercation at his home and cut two men and his wife.

After booking, the negro was placed in a cell. Half an hour later a policeman walking by the tier saw the negro's body suspended to the top of the cell by his belt. The negro, according to police, applied the belt to the top railing of the cell, stood on the cot and jumped off. Instead of breaking his neck, the belt was slowly strangling him. He was cut down unconscious.

2 Children Injured At Plaza Playground

Girl Struck on Head by Bat;
Boy Suffers Fractured
Leg in Tumble.

Two school children yesterday afternoon, while playing on the Plaza Playground, Second and E streets northeast, met with accidents within a period of fifteen minutes which necessitated their receiving hospital treatment. Both were taken to Casualty Hospital and treated by Dr. Louis J. McHenry, who found that neither was seriously injured.

At 3:30 o'clock Marian Dandeleit, 13 years old, of 401 Sixth street northeast, was accidentally struck on the head with a baseball bat, suffering contusions to the forehead. Her father took her to the hospital.

Fifteen minutes later Howard Long, 16 years old, of 1200 North Capitol street, stumbled and fell, fracturing his right arm. He was taken to Casualty in a passing automobile and later went to his home.

SMOKE SCREEN VEILS FLEEING RUM RUNNER

Policeman Fails to Catch Suspected Bootlegger in Wild
City Pursuit.

AUTO LATER ABANDONED

A city-wide search for the alleged rum-runner who yesterday abandoned his expensive touring car, equipped with an elaborate smoke screen outfit, after he had by desperate means eluded Policeman Miller Znanenack, of the Eleventh Precinct, whose life he thrice jeopardized, at a late hour last night, and fled.

The machine was found abandoned an hour after Znanenack's futile chase near Sixth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. The cargo of liquor which police believe was carried in the machine during the chase, had been removed.

Znanenack, who has established for himself a reputation for bravery, started chasing the automobile at Eleventh and M streets southeast, when he noticed its springs sagging as though it were heavily loaded.

As soon as the machine's driver saw that he was being followed by the officer, a cloud of smoke three times the width of the street and nearly 100 feet high surged from the alleged rum-runner's machine, as it sped at an estimated speed of 70 miles an hour.

Znanenack fearfully pursued through the smoke, and finally succeeded in making a short cut and cutting in front of his man.

Twice again the officer managed to short cut in front of the machine, but in each instance he was forced to give way or risk his own life. He finally lost the car in the darkness.

The history of the newspaper from the chaotic days when advertising was secured either through fear or favor to the present, when the newspaper is declared to hold the Nation together, a growth of influence of 40 years, was expressed by speakers at the convention of the American Association of Newspaper Editors at the National Press Club yesterday.

William Allen White convulsed the editors with his accounts of personal experiences from the day when reporters defended the editorial fort with fists and guns, and after the editor on payday until they got theirs—or the editor effected his escape until Monday morning.

Stanley Arthur, editor of the Kansas City Star, who is editor of the Topeka Capital and other publications, in his address on "Is the Editorial Page on Its Way Out?" made the declaration that the Government of this country would disintegrate if it were not held together by the newspapers. Incidentally, Senator Capper does not believe the editorial has lost its influence.

Chas. Paper Public Utility.

"A newspaper is virtually a public utility. It is run for the public good, and any paper that fails in that duty is doomed to failure," Senator Capper said.

"In fact, American newspapers are the backbone of the Government. Without them it would be a lawless anarchy. If they are running it, they are not running it to the law's favor."

"We are making headway in improving Government," said the Lord, "if they are running it, they are not running it to the law's favor."

12 MEMORIALS ERECTED

Honoring the memory of the pioneer mothers who followed their men over the early trails of the country, the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution yesterday afternoon assembled at Bethesda, Md., for the unveiling of the twelfth and last "Madonna of the Trail" statue. Approximately 5,000 persons attended the exercises.

The "Madonna" monuments have been erected in each of the twelve States through which the early trails ran in the trek to the West of the pioneers. One statue in each State has been erected through the efforts of the National Old Trails Road Association and the national old trails committee of the D. A. R.

The exercises started with a concert by the First Tank Group Band, of Camp Meade, followed by the invocation, given by the Rev. Clarence Prentice Parker, led by the Children of the American Revolution, the gathering then joined in reciting the "Salute to the Flag," which was followed by the "Star-Spangled Banner."

Welcomed in Bethesda.

Mrs. Enoch G. Johnson, Maryland State chairman of the national old trails committee of the D. A. R. and a resident of Bethesda, welcomed the delegates to the unveiling of the twelfth and last "Madonna of the Trail" statue. She said that the monument would be cared for with loving care.

Mrs. Daniel Merabon Garrison presented Mrs. Alfred J. Broese van Groenou, state chairman of the D. A. R., and recounted the hardships and self-sacrifice of the early pioneer mothers who followed their men over the early trails.

Mrs. Broese van Groenou was followed by Judge Harry S. Truman, president of the National Old Trails Road Association, which has worked in conjunction with the D. A. R. in erecting the monuments.

LACK OF ADDRESSES HINDERS TAX REFUND

Payment of $20,000 Held Up
Because Owners Can't Be Located.

FEE PAYABLE, BILL OR NOT

Failure of thousands of District real estate owners to give the District government their addresses has resulted in an indefinite delay in the return of excess tax payments amounting to nearly $20,000. William F. Richards, tax assessor, disclosed yesterday in making public a report submitted to him by Mrs. Anna E. Thompson, director of the tax refund division.

Thousands of dollars in penalties are assessed annually against owners who neglect to go to the District Building and get their tax bills and pay them. They would receive their bills through the mails if they gave their proper addresses to the assessor and tax collector, Richards said.

Richards and Chatham Towers, tax collector, emphasized that the law makes it incumbent on the property owner to pay his taxes, whether a bill is sent him or not.

Approximately 2,500 refunds have been made to date, but there are hundreds of cases in which the District officials are not able to make refunds because they do not have the addresses of the taxpayers to whom the refunds are due.

Refunds made by the refund division since it was created and went into operation in January last year have totaled approximately $40,000. These refunds have been possible only through careful and diligent search of the records of the assessor and tax collector, Richards said.

District officials urge that property owners write beneath their names on their tax bills their correct addresses, and should they change their addresses, promptly inform the assessor and tax collector for their own convenience and protection.

The mailing of tax bills to property owners, and is not required by law, but every property owner must assume the full responsibility for paying to the assessor the correct amount of taxes due on his property at the time the payment is due.

Both men were taken to Casualty Hospital, where they were treated by Dr. Louis J. McHenry. Dowling's injuries are not regarded as serious, but until x-ray pictures have been taken physicians are undetermined as to Bricker's condition.
